Message From Afshin

Hi Team,

This month, I've been reflecting on what family truly means—not just the one we're born into, but the one we choose to build together.

I'm fortunate to come from a large extended family with over 100 cousins scattered across the United States and around the world. What amazes me isn't just our numbers, but how effortlessly we connect whenever we reunite. I was able to “experience” my family recently at a family wedding that brought almost everyone together for a long weekend. Despite the miles and months between us, when we gather, it feels completely natural—like no time has passed at all. There's an unspoken understanding, a shared foundation that transcends geography and circumstance.

This got me thinking about the family we are building here at Kurv. Just like my extended family, each of you brings something unique to the table. We have different backgrounds, skills, perspectives, and personalities, yet when we come together, there's that same natural synergy we experience with our own families. What makes a family strong isn't uniformity—it's the beautiful diversity of talents and characters that complement and strengthen each other. And we certainly have our share of characters here at Kurv! I love the interactions I have with everyone when I visit the offices and get to know just a little something more about each of you.

When I think about what we are building together here at Kurv, it reminds me that we are not just colleagues working toward quarterly goals; we're a chosen family building something meaningful together. Every project becomes an opportunity to forge deeper connections, every challenge becomes a chance to support one another, and every success becomes a shared celebration.
The connections we make here don't just drive our company's growth—they enrich our lives and create lasting relationships that extend far beyond these walls. Together, we're not just growing a business; we're nurturing a family that will thrive for years to come. I am personally looking forward to continuing to celebrate our success with my Kurv family!
